
List of Tables

- 3.1 Internet users by region and type of society, 2000
 - 3.2 Proportion of the population using new and old media
 - 3.3 Correlations in use of the new and old media
 - 3.4 Explaining the spread of technology

 - 4.1 Trends in Internet use in Europe and America, 1996-99
 - 4.2 Trends in computer use in Europe and America, 1996-99
 - 4.3 Trends in the social profile of Internet users in Europe, 1996-99
 - 4.4 Explaining Internet use in Europe, 1996 and 1999
 - 4.5 Use of new and old media in Europe, 1999
 - 4.6 Explaining use of new and old media in Europe, 1999

 - 5.1 The popularity of politics on the web
 - 5.2 The estimated universe of political websites

 - 6.1 The world of e-governance, 2000
 - 6.2 e-Governance by policy sector, 1999
 - 6.3 Explaining e-Governance
 - 6.4 eGovernance by the type of society and democracy

 - 7.1 The world of parliamentary webs
 - 7.2 The contents of parliamentary webs
 - 7.3 The functions of parliamentary webs
 - 7.4 Explaining parliamentary webs

 - 8.1 The world of party websites
 - 8.2 Types of parties online
 - 8.3 The contents of electoral party websites
 - 8.4 The function of electoral party websites
 - 8.5 Explaining party websites

 - 9.1 The world of online newspapers
 - 9.2 The world of online news media
-

-
- 9.3 Explaining the distribution of online newspapers

 - 10.1 Identities on the Internet, US 1999
 - 10.2 Moral and economic values, US 1999
 - 10.3 Moral values by Internet use, US 1999
 - 10.4 Economic values by Internet use, US 1999
 - 10.5 Partisan sympathies by Internet use, US 1999
 - 10.6 Policy priorities by Internet use, EU-15 1999
 - 10.7 Cosmopolitan, national and local identities by Internet use, EU-15 1999

 - 11.1 European interest in the Internet, EU-15 1999
 - 11.2 The popularity of online activities, EU-15 2000
 - 11.3 Knowledge of EU institutions, EU-15 1999
 - 11.4 Trust in political institutions, EU-15, 1999
 - 11.5 Satisfaction with democracy, EU-15 1999
 - 11.6 Indicators of political participation and news consumption, EU-15 1999
 - 11.7 The political characteristics of Internet users, EU-15 1999
-

List of Figures

- 1.1 The Internet engagement model

 - 2.1 Worldwide trends in the online population, 1995-2000
 - 2.2 The cumulative 'S' curve of technological diffusion
 - 2.3 20th Century American technology
 - 2.4 Worldwide diffusion of radio, television and the Internet, 1950-2000

 - 3.1 The percentage of the population online by major region, 2000
 - 3.2 The percentage of the population online by nation, 2000
 - 3.3 The world of Internet hosts and the online population, 2000
 - 3.4 The information society
 - 3.5 Economic development and Internet use
 - 3.6 R&D spending and Internet use
 - 3.7 The worldwide diffusion of TVs and radios, 1970-2000

 - 4.1 % Online by social group, US 2000
 - 4.2 % Online, EU-15 1996-99
 - 4.3 % Online by income, EU-15 1999
 - 4.4 % Online by occupation, EU-15 1999
 - 4.5 % Online by education, EU-15 1999
 - 4.6 % Online by gender, EU-15 1999
 - 4.7 % Online by age group, EU-15 1999
 - 4.8 Changes in Internet use among European social groups, 1996-99

 - 5.1 The virtual political system

 - 6.1 The world of e-Governance
 - 6.2 One-stop e-governance in Norway, the UK, Singapore and the United States
 - 6.3 e-Governance and democratization
 - 6.4 e-Governance and the Information Society

 - 7.1 Examples of Parliamentary websites: France, Australia, India, and Brazil
-

-
- 7.2 Online parliaments and democratization

 - 8.1 Examples of party websites: South Africa, Afghanistan, India, Britain and the US
 - 8.2 The world of online parties
 - 8.3 Online parties and democratization
 - 8.4 Online parties and the Information Society

 - 9.1 Examples of online TV News: Britain, Australia, the US and Canada
 - 9.2 The world of online newspapers
 - 9.3 The printed press and digital newspapers
 - 9.4 Examples of transnational advocacy networks online

 - 10.1 The potential impact of the Internet upon public opinion
 - 10.2 Use of the mass media by generation
 - 10.3 Internet identities, US 1999
 - 10.4 Map of political cyberculture, US 2000

 - 11.1 Use of political websites, EU-15 2000
-